

About Anson Funds:

Anson Funds, founded in 2007, is a USD$2.5bn (C$3.5bn) Toronto-based, privately held multi-strategy investment firm. As a multi-strategy investment manager, we combine a disciplined investment process with nimbleness to drive returns across all market environments.

We bring together talented professionals across research, operations, legal, compliance, technology, and more — all working toward the shared mission of delivering consistent absolute returns. Our current team of 14 investment professionals is empowered daily to stretch beyond their job descriptions, challenge ideas, and make an immediate impact. We are looking to add an additional Investment Analyst to our driven, high-performing team.

Position Description – Investment Analyst:

Anson Funds is seeking an Investment Analyst to join its Toronto-based investment team. This role offers the opportunity to work closely with senior investors on fundamental research, financial analysis, and idea generation across public markets. The successful candidate will support the evaluation of new investment opportunities, monitor existing positions, and contribute to ongoing portfolio analysis. This high-impact role is in-office, 5 days a week, suited for a detail-oriented, intellectually curious analyst with strong analytical skills and a passion for investing.

Responsibilities

- Conduct in-depth fundamental research on public companies across multiple sectors through primary and secondary research to understand business models, competitive positioning, industry structure, and key value drivers
- Build and maintain detailed financial models with a strong understanding of valuation, accounting, and capital structure dynamics: track and identify inflections in company and/or industry data, working capital dynamics, leverage, and accounting nuances/distortions
- Prepare clear and concise investment memoranda articulating thesis, catalysts, variant views, key risks, valuation, and expected return to support long and short investment theses
- Clearly communicate complex ideas and analyses verbally, written, or presentation form to senior investment professionals
- Proactively source and screen investment ideas using a variety of approaches including quantitative screens, thematic research, event-driven research, monitoring corporate actions, and news flow
- Maintain and update an active and organized pipeline of long and short ideas

Qualifications

- 2-5 years of experience in investment banking, private equity, equity research, investment management, or financial consulting

ANSON FUNDS

- Undergraduate university degree or higher; CFA or similar designation(s) are considered an asset
- Strong financial modeling experience and accounting knowledge
- Advanced Excel skills and familiarly with financial databases and research tools (e.g., Bloomberg, FactSet, Capital IQ)
- Ability to formulate and defend a view based on in-depth research
- Ability to manage multiple projects under tight deadlines in a fast-paced, performance-driven environment
- Strong critical thinking skills with the ability to challenge consensus views and develop independent opinions under a process-driven approach to investing
- Possess a genuine passion for public markets
- High attention to detail, intellectual curiosity, outside-the-box thinking, and independence

Offer:

The Company offers a highly competitive compensation package, including annual performance bonuses and the opportunity for incremental annual compensation linked to fund returns.
